A contribution by Domnita Dumitrescu can be found in the forthcoming online/CD-ROM publication, Julio Escamilla Morales y Grandfield Henry Vega (2012):Miradas multidisciplinarias a los fenómenos de cortesía y descortesía en el mundo hispánico. Barranquilla/Estocolmo: Universidad del Atlántico/Programa EDICE, ISBN: 978-958-874225-0. This is a collection of papers from the V Coloquio Internacional del Programa Edice(Estudios del discurso de la cortesía en español) held in Barranquilla, Colombia in December 2010.

Domnita also presented the paper “La Academia Norteamericana de la Lengua Española y el español en Estados Unidos”, at the 94th Annual Conference of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 7-10, 2012. At the same conference, in her capacity as book/media review editor, she was a presenter at the workshop entitled “Hispania: A step-by-step mini-workshop,” on how to prepare articles and book review manuscripts for publication in the scholarly journal of the association, one of the best in the nation in the fields of Spanish and Portuguese.

In addition, Domnita published the following two academic articles online: “The Representation of Spanish Regional Speech in Literary Dialogues of the Past Century”, Proceedings of the 13th IADA conference of the International Association for Dialogue Analysis (IADA), edited by François Cooren and Alain Létourneau, Montreal, Canada, 2012, pp. 222-225; and “Reflexiones sobre la Ortografía básica de la lengua española”, Glosas vol. 7, Nr. 10, Septiembre de 2012, pp. 2-8 (this is a periodical publication of the North American Academy of the Spanish Language). She also published the Hispania Guest editorial “Spanglish: What’s in a Name?” in Hispania 95.3 (2012), pp. x-xii.

Domnita is Professor of Spanish Linguistics, Emerita, of California State University, Los Angeles.

MaryEllen Garcia will retire from the University of Texas at San Antonio officially at the end of August, 2012 after 24 academic years of service. In the 10 years prior to starting there in 1988, she lived in the Los Angeles area, working at SWRL Education Research and Development in Los Alamitos and subsequently as a Lecturer at Cal State Long Beach and UCLA. She has already relocated to her property in Lake Elsinore, California, returning to her home state and extended family. (BTW, she much prefers cooking to gardening and plans on having her backyard xeriscaped to conserve water in that semi-arid climate. She considers her cable tv to be her Significant Other, and reading true crime thrillers a guilty pleasure that she can now indulge in more freely. (She will never be bored!)

MaryEllen has served on the LASSO Executive Committee and on the Editorial Committee of SWJL. She has held several offices in this organization, including Vice-President and President. New or forthcoming publications include a booknote on Spanish of the U.S. Southwest; A language in transition, edited by Lassovians Daniel Villa and Susana Rivera-Mills, in the recent issue of Language in Society. Soon to appear in Hispania is her critical review of the Handbook on Hispanic Sociolinguistics, edited by Manuel Díaz-Campos. Other items in press will be announced as they appear. Her future plans are to work out of her home office as an independent consultant on Spanish-English bilingualism. If you would like to contact her, she can be reached via e-mail at: maryelleng@sbcglobal.net

Alleen and Don Nilson are first and fourth authors, respectively, of the 9th edition of Literature for Today’s Young Adults. According to the publisher’s website, Literature for Today’s Young Adults “gives teachers, librarians, parents, counselors, and other group leaders—as well as instructors and students in college courses in Adolescent/Young Adult Literature—a comprehensive look at YA literature framed within a literary, historical, and social context as a means to motivating teens to become life-long readers.” More information can be found at:

The revised edition of Don and Alleen’s Pronunciation Contrasts in English (Waveland Press, 2010) has an entire section devoted to the English spelling system. As Don explained: “Our point is that the English Spelling System should be viewed not as a phonemic system, but as a morphophonemic system (as was first suggested by Chomsky and Halle in their Sound Patterns of English). When this is done, English spelling is extremely systematic and rule governed.” More information about this book is available at:
http://www.waveland.com/browse.php?t=319&r=aj403

Alleen is now the chair of the Arizona State University Emeritus College Faculty for the Humanities, and Don is the Assistant Dean of the ASU Emeritus College Division of the Humanities.

Eva Núñez Méndez and Raven Chakerian have the following article forthcoming: “A linguistic comparative study between Sicilian and Spanish”, Lingüística y Literatura 25: 249-73, Catholic University of Santiago de Chile. This study proposes a comparative analysis of Spanish and Sicilian. While numerous linguistic studies have been done on Romanic languages, very few deal with Sicilian, isolated as a dialect of Italian. According to some linguists, Sicilian, as well as Sardinian, is not a dialect but an independent language per se. It lost its language status when the Italian parliament designated a national language. This research analyses the most important phonetic, lexical, spelling and morphological differences between Sicilian and Spanish. At the same time, some parallelisms with Italian and Latin are presented to better understand the linguistic evolution of Sicilian. The main goal is to contribute to the analytical cannon of studies in both Romanic languages and dialects, and to point to the importance of Sicilian, which has received very little attention in the field of linguistics.

Eva has also published Fundamentos teóricos y prácticos de historia de la lengua española. According to the publisher’s website: “This is a comprehensive language text about the evolution of Spanish, from its Latin roots to modern Spanish, that is intended for advanced undergraduate and graduate students. It provides an overview of the birth, formation, and development of the Spanish language in a clear and systematic way and includes exercises and illustrative texts. It is user-friendly for instructors, as it provides all the necessary elements (history, exercises, and primary sources) for use as a main text—no supplements are needed.” For more information, see: http://yalepress.yale.edu/yupbooks/book.asp?isbn=9780300170986

Eva is Associate Professor of Spanish at Portland State University in Oregon. Her fields of research focus primarily on theoretical linguistics (phonetics, syntax and history of Spanish language) and on applied linguistics (text analysis, teaching methodology, and translation).

Helmut Esau Prize: Congratulations to R. Mata, UCSD

LASSO is very proud of all of our student members and encourages them to not only present their research at our annual meeting, but to also participate in the contest for the Esau Prize.

To be eligible for the Helmut Esau Prize, students must first present at the Annual Meeting and then submit a revised version of their paper to the LASSO Vice President. The prize is awarded to the best of all high-quality submissions received. Recipients of this prestigious prize receive a $400 cash award. To be considered for the 2013 Esau Prize, polished, article-length manuscripts should be sent, preferably as an e-mail attachment, to Jens Clegg at cleggj@ipfw.edu following our fall meeting, and must be in his hands by February 28, 2013. Papers may also be sent to:

Jens Clegg
IPFW - ILCS
2101 East Coliseum Boulevard
Fort Wayne, IN 46805-1499

We received four very high quality submissions for the 2012 Esau Award. “Internal and External (De)Valueation: A Case Study in Methodology for Language Ideology Research on Varieties of Spanish”, by Chase W. Raymond of the UCLA Department of Spanish and Portuguese & Department of Sociology, investigates Spanish speaker opinions about the various varieties of Spanish spoken in the world. This work, describes how the concept of a “Standard” language ideology (cf. Lippi-Green 2007) is applied by different speakers of different Spanishes. Ann Michelle Foster of UCLA submitted her “Ergativity and Passive Voice in Q’anjob’al”. In this paper she proposes that the Mayan language Q’anjob’al, an ergative language with frequent use of passive voice constructions and a relatively rare antipassive, offers an argument against the notion advocated by various authors (including Dixon 1979 and Spencer 1995) that passive voice is rare in ergative languages, and that instead productive antipassive constructions are typical. In a very difficult decision, the 2012 Esau Prize was ultimately awarded to R. Mata, of UCSD for the paper “Simplification of Subjunctive in the Spanish of the San Diego-Tijuana Border Area”. R. Mata’s paper explores the simplification and loss of the subjunctive mood in speakers in the San Diego-Tijuana border area. It focuses on first and second-generation speakers of Spanish not only in the San Diego area but also in the Tijuana area in order to determine the extent to which simplification of subjunctive is a generational phenomenon or a regional phenomenon. This paper argues that a previously-unexplored geographical variable is an important factor in the simplification of subjunctive in speakers of Spanish in the San Diego area. The results show a stronger geographical effect than a generational one. Speakers of Spanish who immigrated to the United States as young adults and who have remained in the country for at least twenty years show a greater tendency to simplify the use of subjunctive. Whereas language change has often been attributed to language attrition as an intergenerational factor, language contact with English and immigration may also condition these changes.

This award is named in honor of Helmut Esau, who was active in the early days of LASSO. Professor Esau died in an automobile accident shortly after he was... elected to the LASSO presidency, and his colleagues at the time established the Esau Award to commemorate his contributions to the Linguistic Association of the Southwest and to the profession at large.

Special thanks goes out to Holly Cashman for her administration of the 2012 Esau Prize.

THE SOUTHWEST JOURNAL OF LINGUISTICS

Joint Editors Pamela Anderson-Mejías and Hugo Mejías at the University of Texas Pan-American are accepting manuscripts for consideration for publication during 2012-2013. Manuscripts should be sent electronically to swjlasso@utpa.edu, but must also be accompanied by a pdf. version or a hard copy to following address: Pamela Anderson-Mejías and Hugo A. Mejías, Joint Editors, Southwest Journal of Linguistics, Department of Modern Languages, University of Texas—Pan American, 1201 University Drive, Edinburg, Texas, 78541, USA.

EDITORIAL SCOPE

The journal publishes papers across a broad range of topics in linguistics, though research papers dealing with the languages of the southwestern United States and northern Mexico are especially encouraged. The journal also publishes scholarly reviews of the literature, book reviews, and occasional commentary on topics of concern to the journal's readership. Proposals for thematic issues and nominations for guest editors are invited.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Manuscripts are to be prepared according to the Language style sheet, published annually in the December LSA Bulletin and available at: http://www.lsadc.org/info/pubs-lang-style.cfm

In addition to meeting Language requirements, Southwest Journal of Linguistics contributors should also:

- Prepare manuscripts using WORD or another common word processing program for PC or Mac. Contact the editor for guidance in using special symbols.
- Submit manuscripts in either English or Spanish.
- Include an abstract in English of between 100 and 150 words.
- Submit 1 copy in WORD and one in pdf or hard copy for comparison (especially if symbols are used).

Given the comprehensive goal of the journal, attention is drawn particularly to the Language style sheet provision that contributors provide the names and addresses of appropriate referees.

MEMBERSHIP RENEWAL TIME!

If you have renewed your membership for 2012, we thank you. If you haven't renewed yet, you will find a copy of the 2012 membership form on the last page of this newsletter.

Membership in LASSO demonstrates commitment to the study of linguistics and provides scholars and students alike the opportunity to develop professional friendships, to obtain information about teaching and research, and to exchange ideas and network with each other. LASSO members receive two newsletters per year and two issues per year of the Southwest Journal of Linguistics.

Presentation of papers at the annual LASSO conference is a privilege of membership, and only those who are LASSO members may have their work published in the Southwest Journal of Linguistics.

Now is also a good time to check local library holdings; if your school does not receive the Southwest Journal of Linguistics, by all means request that your institution subscribe today.
